Exit /Close the business

Limited liability company that has not been operational for more than a year should apply to the Registrar of Companies for its closing.

Simply put, Liquidation is the process initiated by a company to close its operations. The company may decide to wind up due to various reasons such as unwillingness to continue with the operations, insolvency and so on. As the term suggests, liquidation of a company refers to liquidating the assets of the company.

By initiating the liquidation process, the company may sell its assets to meet obligations and repay liabilities. If a company is liquidated due to bankruptcy, the liquidator can sell its assets to repay all pending liabilities. The remaining balance, if any, after repayment to the creditors, gets distributed among the shareholders of the company.
